Looking back . . .

We look back as much as we look forward.
Time is a continuous memory
which haunts us forever.
Like photographs,
we flash upon our memories.
A scene here,
a good time there.
There were people
and places
and fun times.
Remember?

Faces are important because we remember them
first. Names come to mind.
When we think of them
and friends held so dear,
we remember first
their smiles
and tears.
Then the memories of the times we spent together fade in. But dearer than all are the faces . . .
the people.

People

ROGERS

Places . . .

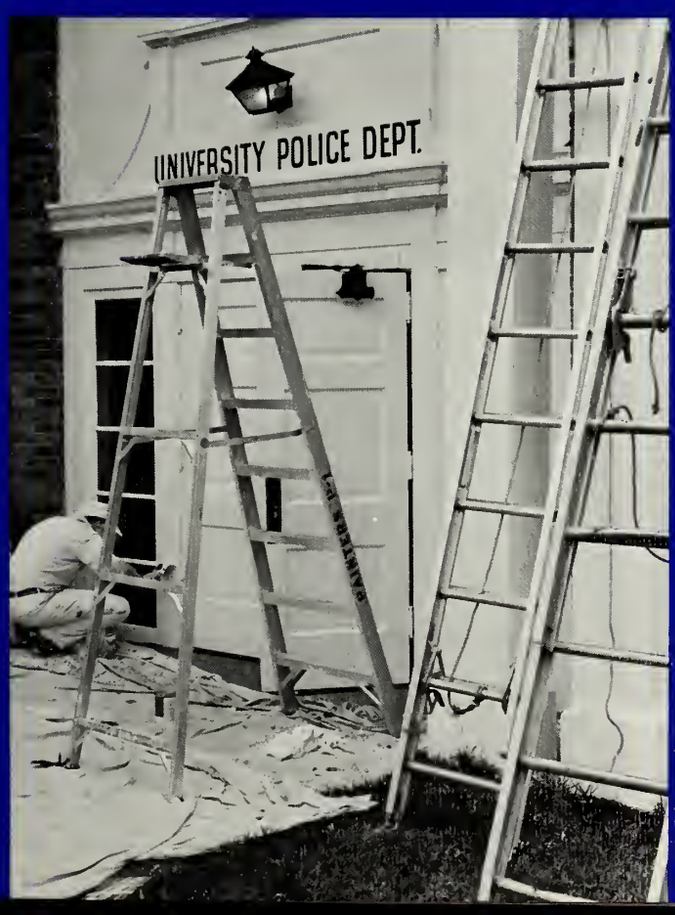

Where time passes

Inside, outside.
Old places, new places.
At a desk enclosed by brick walls or under a tree
surrounded by nature.
Whether for learning, experiencing or merely existing there is a special place
where our memories are born.

The days are filled
and the nights aren't empty.
Events are always here and now.
Look no further than outside your mind.
Expression and discussion.
Involvement and emotion.
It's all a matter of being there when and where they exist. Something is always happening. Open your eyes and feel.

Events

We scorn materialism,
but some things are meant to be held on to,
even if only in our minds.
Whether shared by everyone or belonging to only one, all things are important. They are a part of our memories.
Books, old photographs,
doors leading to our own private worlds and even the web worms in the Fall.
We remember through these things
the "good old days."
Time passes too quickly to keep it all, but we save what we can.

Changes . . .

I see new ones everyday;
good and bad,
they keep coming at me.
My head spins faster and faster unaware of a place to rest.

. . . and more promises are made

Half-built buildings look down at me with promises of new beginnings.
More promises:
apartments in Dorm 19 and upper-class dorms.
An old promise kept:
a co-ed dorm.
It exists at SFA.
Changes . . . for the better?
Are we adults now?
Can we decide?
We decided about liquor.
We voted it in and now we have it in the dorms.
What a rush to answer the phone and a voice says,
"Your order is here."
And it's not a pizza or a burger.
Ah, liquid refreshment.

What is dorm life?

Living in the dorm — it's an experience most of us face at some time during our college years. What is it like? Well, it's having so much to do you don't know where to start or it's being so bored that you go out of your mind. It's studying and snacking, staying up late and getting up early. It's flooded shower rooms and maids with squeaky trash carts. It's a panty raid with a bunch of guys standing below your window making fools of themselves. It's decorating for Homecoming, Halloween, Christmas or anything else you can find an excuse for. It's horsing around, intense phone conversations and forgetting about visitation and going into the hall in your pajamas (or less). Like most of life, it's half misery and half fun.

Good news, bad news, any news

The Post Office . . . between classes, hundreds of us flood the tiny area. For some, it's happiness — cookies from Mom; she finally wrote; a check from Grandma ("Just to help you out a little"); he's coming home.

For others it's sadness — Aunt Agatha passed away; Spot got run over; the shoes come the day after the party; "Your father and I are having some trouble, dear."

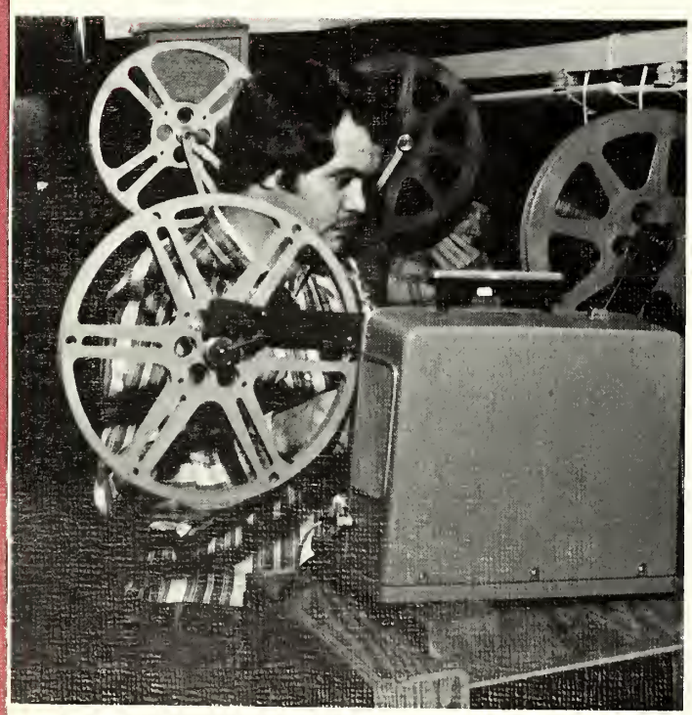

And for some, it's another day with that empty box staring you in the face.

Letters running 35 to 1 in favor

By HOWARD FIELDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Letters are pouring into the offices of the House Judiciary Committee at the rate of 5,000 to 6,000 a day and running better than 35 to 1 in favor of the impeachment of President Nixon.

By Friday, the committee staff had tabulated all the letters, telegrams and petitions received through Nov. 5. The tally showed 76,834 persons favoring impeachment and 2,168 against impeachment and backing Nixon.

An aide to the committee, which has been investigating possible grounds for impeachment, said he was impressed that most of the communications appeared spontaneous and unsolicited, unlike the orchestrated letter campaigns which deluged the committee in the past on the busing issue and civil rights.

Most of the appeals were simple and direct like one from a Chicago woman who wrote: "Put impeachment as your first order of business."

Some persons sent newspaper clippings, full-page ads calling for impeachment and impeachment coupons clipped from underground newspapers. But very few of the letters read as if they were copied from a form suggested by some groups which have been organized to advocate or fight impeachment.

One aide who has been opening the letters said that less than one in 20 could be interpreted as part of an orchestrated campaign. He said the daily flow of letters into the office has remained fairly constant, ranging from a low of 5,000 to as many as 17,000, according to latest developments in the Watergate case.

Another committee aide who made the letters and telegrams available to UPI did so with the understanding names would not be used in order to protect writers from reprisals. All letters quoted, however, were signed.

"Our family is in favor of impeaching Mr. Nixon," said a couple from Anaheim, Calif., writing in longhand on lined notebook paper. "He must not be allowed to continue in office. No one person is above the law, no one person can set himself up as supreme ruler."

A woman from upper New York State said bluntly: "Richard Nixon must resign or be impeached. The disclosure of the missing tapes, following so closely upon the dismissal of special prosecutor Archibald Cox, is the last straw. There is nothing Mr. Nixon or his staff can say that will dispel the aura of untruths that have been forthcoming from the White House during his administration."

Most of the letters were addressed to Peter W. Rodino Jr. D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee which was assigned to the inquiry after 11 impeachment resolutions were introduced in the House last month. The committee indicated it does not intend to devote time to the inquiry until it deals with nomination of Rep. Gerald Ford as v president and a proposal for an dependent Watergate prosecutor.

The Final Straw

Sir / This is the final straw.

For months, I have been deeply concerned about the lawlessness and immorality of the Nixon Administration. But now, with the firing of Archibald Cox [Oct 29], President Nixon has revealed in even sharper focus his obsession with power and lack of sound judgment.

No man, not even the President, is above the law and the courts that uphold the law.

I believe the only recourse now is

The White House under fire: Nixon ponders his situation as the people ponder theirs.
Did he know?
Is the President above the law?
Is justice blind in America?
Agnew bows to pressure claiming he does it to save the country.
Illegal activities and national security are tied together as excuses for each other.
What will happen next?

Hide 'n seek with Housing

Students didn't know where they stood on off-campus permits this year with the administration changing its mind on the issue every few months. It all started last summer when the administration decided that anyone with less than 99 hours had to live on campus or with relatives.

So much hell was raised by students that Dr. Steen proclaimed any student who would be 21 by September could get an off-campus permit since they had waited so long just to have the rules changed.

Some were able to escape another year of dorm living with the help of their parents, forged letters and make believe relatives. Those who did get off were subject to investigation by Housing. Watergate methods were used to track down students who were living off campus illegally.

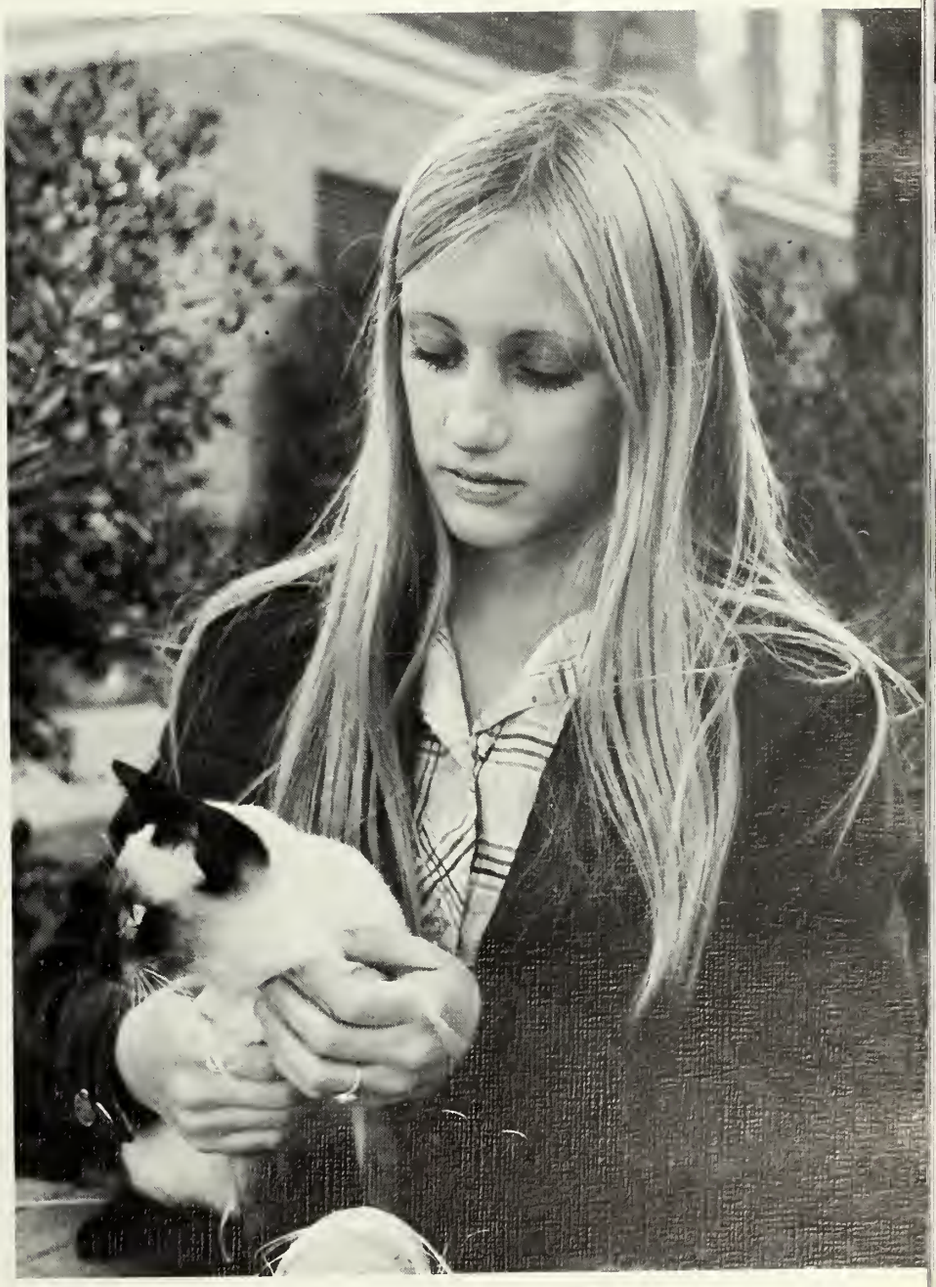

A large number of students were caught attempting to live outside the "harmonious" trappings of the dorm and were forced to move out of their apartments and houses with the threat of disciplinary probation for falsifying university records.

By the middle of the Spring semester, however, the rules had changed again. Students now with at least 66 hours can choose to live either in the dorm, school apartments or off campus. Students left for the summer still not sure what the rules would be when they returned for the fall term. Hopefully the administration won't change its mind again.

Despite all, still time to live

County stays wet; Constitution wins

On returning in the Fall, students were faced with two major elections.

Memories of Apple Springs and bootlegging came to mind when the legal sale of alcohol was threatened by a local option election in September. Students joined forces with Nacogdoches residents to defeat the "drys" 4,662-2,627.

Only 1,000 students voted in the constitutional ratification election in October. Apathy won another victory as 9,000 of the silent majority again remained silent.

The new student Constitution was approved, creating a three-branch student government and bill of rights.

"Free inquiry and free expression . . . are essential attributes of the community of scholars."

that's the end of another semester.

the next semester starts soon enough; in fact, too soon
where classes are concerned.
but it's always hard to say good-bye to friends.
some are coming back and that's fine.
but some aren't. they'll be off for other adventures in the big, bad world.
they've seen the last of classrooms and bells.
for them there will be no more all-night parties

they must be "responsible" and most likely we'll never see those friends as we knew them

anyway, the party is just beginning and I'm gonna down that keg all by myself.

Christmas . . . campus style

Christmas on campus has as many and varied faces as the thousands of individuals who express the holiday mood.

Some of the faces of Christmas were displayed by activities of the University Center, cafeterias, religious organizations, service organizations, Greeks and the music department.

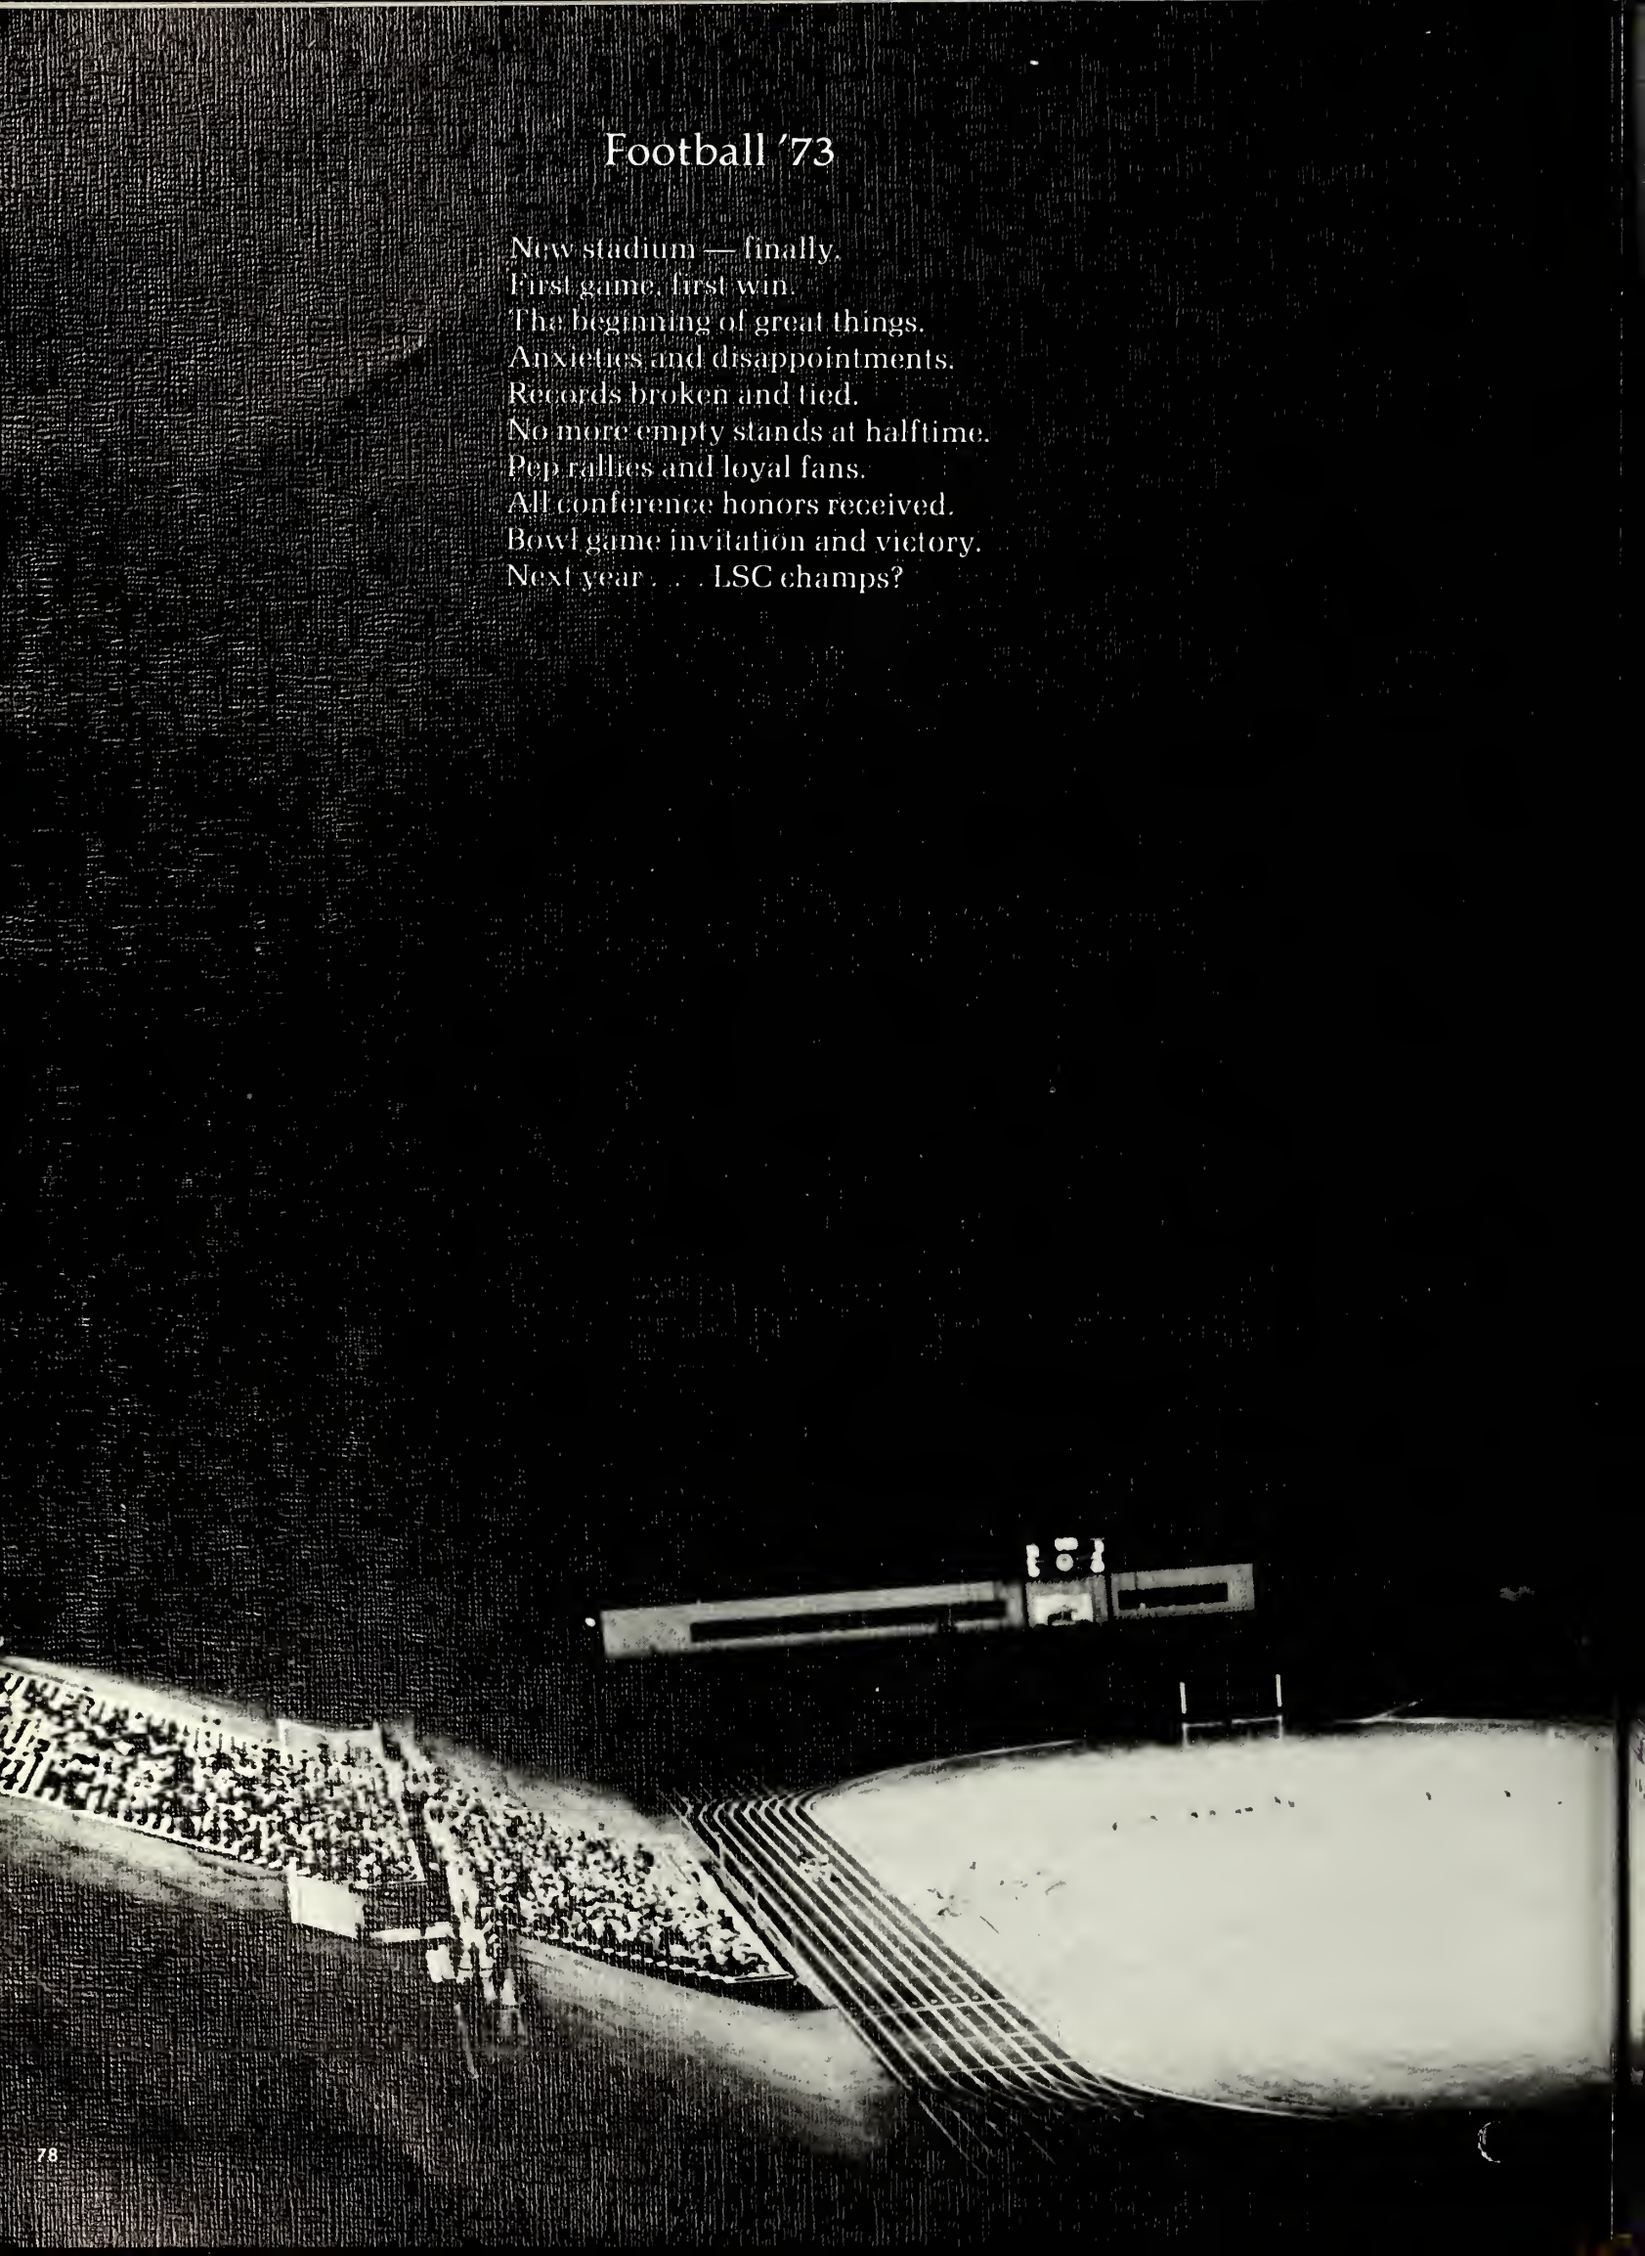

This year the energy crisis shed a different light, if not less light, on campus during the holiday season. Outdoor lighting was kept at a minimum and indoor decorative lighting was discouraged.

Although preparations and decorations were neither elaborate nor extensive — this was Christmas '73, campus style.

Women's sports . . .

an editorial comment

In everyday life women appear to live an equal life as compared with men. There is no doubt in my mind that discrimination exists. The best example of this is women's sports.

SFA women compete in seven varsity sports. Men only participate in five. However, the men's varsity athletic department operates on a $288,000 plus budget and, in addition, the men's intramural program received $21,825. The women's varsity and intramural programs together only received $21,825.

Where does the money for sports come from? Ninety percent comes from the $30 student service fee which every student must pay regardless of sex. Women receive less than five percent of this money. Is this not discrimination from the beginning?

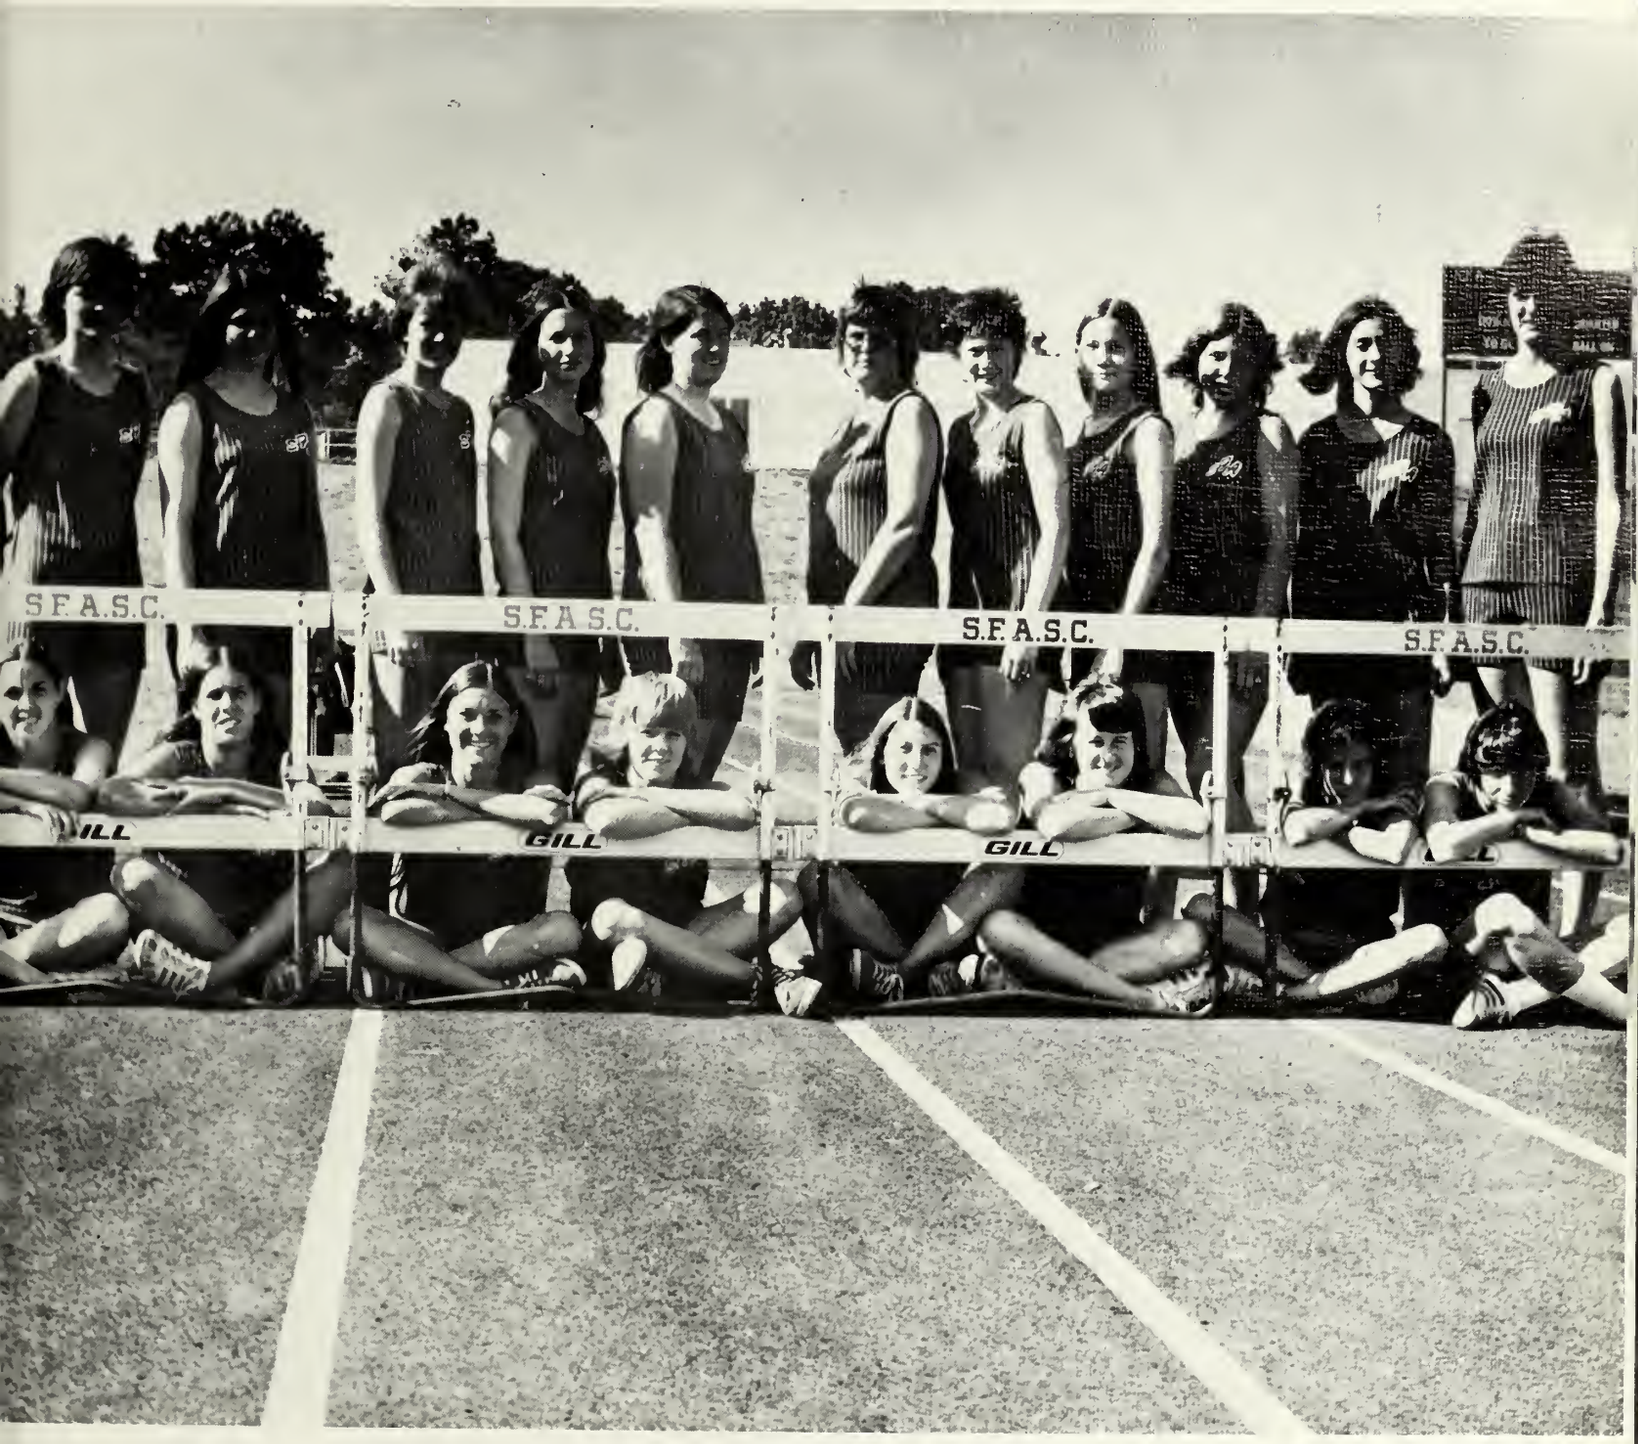

SFA women sportsters are dedicated athletes and their coaches are volunteers. By volunteer, I mean they are unpaid and are not allotted any special time to work with their teams. Men coaches, excluding John Levra, are allotted one fourth of their time to coaching.

The women's program is on a 2.0 GPA basis and women do not receive the special advantages men athletes seem to enjoy gradewise by playing. Dr. Steen said equality for women's sports has not, as yet, been a major topic of discussion at the President's Council. He does promise, however, that "we'll try to keep pace with the other schools in our category."

Why does SFA have to wait on other colleges to make the first step? For once, why can't SFA learn to walk without some other school taking the necessary first step?

The SFA theatre season was highlighted by such excellent productions as "Harvey" and "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail." The plays, directed respectively by Tom Donnaud and Dr. Thomas Heino, were well acted, and in the case of "Thoreau" held over for extra performances.

The only blemishes on the season were "Adding Machine" and "The King and I." "Adding Machine" suffered from overproduction and fair acting. Debbie Fredenburg was the only redeeming value of "The King and I," a musical which lacked leadership and excitement.

Other notable plays for the season included "Little Murders" and "Blood Wedding."

What will you do when you graduate?

Get a job?
Get married?
Have kids?
Go to graduate school?
Take a long vacation?
Get drunk?

Reflections of time gone past
still heavy laden memories of yesterday's dreams,
all these revolve through my mind.
I remember . . .

long walks on rainy streets
sleepless nights in 24-hour coffee shops unopened texts
cramming for tests
lonely weekends when everyone left town but me empty offices
ungraded papers
the everpresent dean fraternity woodsies quiet pep rallies
football games won basketball games lost

all this and more rest in my thoughts ready to come forth like a flash of time and it's all there as I march across that graduation stage.

The process of learning

Is this the way we've found
to explore the mysteries of the universe?
Is this the way we've found
to educate our minds for tomorrow?
Have we been made aware of our potentials?
We are trying — time will tell.

Ross Ashby

Thus far this Stone Fort has depicted the SFA student in his campus environment. But the student sees more than just Nacogdoches and the campus.
The eye of a person catches all that is around him. This next section presents a portfolio of what the artist as a photographer sees.
It affects us, and we hope it will affect you.
